WINNIE STEWART COMPANY

Of The Hesson Lyceum Bureau Was a Great Success

The people of this city were treated to a delightful entertainment at the opera house Tuesday night by the Winnie Stewart Co. with the Hesson Lyceum Bureau. The audience enjoyed the Music both instrumental and vocal and the readings by Miss Stewart as was evidenced by the prolonged applause. This company is one of the best that the music lovers of this city have had the pleasure of listening to for some time. Manager John Loug certainly is to be commended for securing such creditable talent as the Winnie Stewart Company and Earlinton people will be glad to have another opportunity of hearing them.

Scoliosis's Piercing Pain

To kill the nerve pains of Scoliosis can always depend on Sloan's Liniment. It penetrates to the seat of pain and brings ease as soon as it is applied. Try it at once if you suffer from Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sore Throat, Pain in Chest, Sprains, Bruises, etc. It is excellent for Neuralgia and Headache. 25¢ at all druggists.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Margaret Helen O'Brien entertained quite a number of her little friends last Saturday afternoon, it being her sixth birthday. After several hours of fun and amusement, the little Hostess led the possession to the dining room which was beautifully decorated with flowers and colored tapers. The birthday cake with six lighted pink candles in tiny pink rose holders, graced the center of the table. They were then served with all the good things that the little ones like best, banana sherbet, cakes, stuffed dates, nuts and candies. The little hostess then presented each guest with her birthmonth flower, after which they departed with loud exclamations of the good time they had, and wishes for many more birthdays.

A CHILD'S TONGUE SHOWS IF LIVER OR BOWELS ARE ACTIVE

If cross, feverish, sick, bilious give fruit laxative at once

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Fig," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

Auction Whist Club

Mrs. Gilbert King was the hostess of the Auction Whist Club on last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Johnson's score was not only the highest score made that afternoon, but the highest made in the Club this season. Meddane Kilus, Johnson, Ross and King led in the total score. A dainty salad course was served during the social hour.

Many People Don't Know

A singular liver can cause a person an awful lot of misery. Spells of dizziness, headaches, constipation and biliousness are sure signs that your liver needs help. Take Dr. King's New Life Pills and see how they help tone up the whole system. Fine for the stomach too. Aids digestion. Purifies the blood and clears the complexion. Only 25¢ at your druggist.

PHIL BROWN FOR DELEGATE AT LARGE

Negro Editor Certain to Go to the National Convention

Phil H. Brown, editor of the Saturday News, Hopkinsville, and one of the most competent political workers in the Kentucky political ranks, is a candidate for and will doubtless be selected as the negro delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention at Chicago, June 7th. Hopkins county republicans, as well as the leaders in the party throughout this part of the State, are for Brown, whose statewide list of endorsements is so strong as to bear the mark of unanimity among the party leaders in Kentucky. No better selection could be made.

STOMACH ACTS FINE! NO INDIGESTION, GAS HEARTBURN, ACIDITY

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sick sick, sour, upset stomach in five minutes

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain, unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which does not agree with them, if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sour and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

Surprise Party Given in Honor of Miss Lillian Hill's Birthday

A merry crowd of youngsters gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hill, on South railroad St., in honor of their daughter Lillian's Sixteenth birthday.

The young people gathered at the home of Miss Anna Lee Branham, and all came down from there in order to surprise the young lady, who all unconscious of the preparations that had been made, was lost in a peaceful dream when they arrived.

After much laughter and great merriment delicious refreshments were served, the color scheme of pink and white being carried out in the ices and cakes.

Those present were: Misses Katie O'Brien, Anna Lee Branham, Virginia and Esther Carnahan, Nellie Blair, Anna, Margaret and Lillian Hill, and Julia and Rose Manns, of Evansville.

Messrs Sam Grace, Robert and Troxwell McGraw and Carter Wallace, of Olney, Ky., Arthur Holeman and Murf McGregor, of Evansville, Clarence Yarbough, Paul Braun and Clay Polly, of Madisonville.

At a late hour the guests all returned home reporting a most delightful time.

There is more Calcarc in this section of the country than at other disease put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a fatal disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven calcarc to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Pall's Calcarc Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails in cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

QUIETUS OF EFFORTS TO SELL LIQUORS

Pembroke Dealers Are Given Severe Blow by Assistant Attorney General

Hopkinsville, Ky., Feb. 6.—A ruling given by D. O. Myatt, assistant attorney general of Kentucky, if a correct view or the prohibition law in this State, puts a quietus on the effort of two firms to secure license to sell liquor at Pembroke, which has voted dry at two special elections held in that territory. The two firms have already filed notice that they would apply to the Pembroke town trustees for license, and the matter is to come up for settlement next week.

Mr. Myatt's letter, which succinctly sets forth the entire case, is:

Dear Sir: I have your letter in which you say that on April 14, 1914, an election was called by the "wets" in the town of Pembroke, then "dry" by a former election, and the result was a "dry" majority. That on September 21, 1914, an election was held in the county of Christian, in which Pembroke is located, and resulted in a "wet" majority. On this state of fact you desire an opinion as to whether the result of the election in Christian county would authorize the sale of liquor in Pembroke.

I beg to advise that it is my understanding of the law that the result of the election for the county as a whole will not have the effect to authorize the sale of liquor in some district of the county that has previously voted "dry" under the local option law, and therefore it would not be lawful to license the sale of liquor in the town of Pembroke.

Yours truly,

D. O. MYATT,
Assistant Attorney General.

OUCH! RUB BACKACHE, STIFFNESS, LUMBAGO

Rub Pain from back with small trial bottle of old "St. Jacob's Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

Kentucky and New Counties

The Kentucky senate, by a vote of seventeen to sixteen, tabled a bill to create a new county to be named in honor of Gov. Stanley. The close friends of the governor have been ardently pressing the bill, though Governor Stanley himself is said to be neutral.

The practice in that state of building a monument to the man who occupies the gubernatorial chair by creating a county and giving it his name became, sometime since, a farce, and it is to be hoped that the friends of the present governor will let the matter rest as it is.

Tennessee, which has ninety-six counties, would be better off with fewer—and no new county has been created in this state for many years. Kentucky, with a smaller area, has 120 counties and is constantly trying to make still more.

For a number of years past, attempts—some successful, others unsuccessful—have been made to create counties in honor of governors. When J. C. W. Beckham was governor, several bills were introduced to create Beckham county, and finally one of them was passed, the boundaries to be defined in the bill. But when the surveyors went to run the lines, they found a marvelous comedy of errors. According to the bill creating it, Beckham county, Kentucky, crossed the Ohio river and ran to a point several miles into the State of Ohio. It cut one Kentucky county in two, so that the people living in one end of it would have to cross another county to get to their own courthouse. It otherwise mutilated the map of two states and infringed the right of the United States to the waters of navigable streams. The courts held, of course, that the law was fatally defective and there is no Beckham county.

But that did not deter other legislatures from creating other counties in honor of other governors. Two or three years ago they made a new one and named it McCroary, in honor of James B. McCroary, then governor. If the thing keeps up, the time is not far distant when the average Kentucky county will not be large enough to contain two voting precincts.—The Tennesseean.

Mud Bound

(With apologies to Mr. Longfellow.)
O, the long and dreary winter!
O, the damp and muddy winter!
Ever deeper, deeper, deeper
Grows the mud around our village.
Scarcely from his mud-bound cottage

Can the farmer force a passage;
In his overshoes and leggings
Wainly plods he 'round the farm yard,
Seeking means of transportation
To the city nearest to him.
High and dry, with propped-up
axles

Gives his motor car, in silence;
In the shed the family carriage stands, as useless as the other.
His good saddle horse, whose pacing
Broke the record but last summer
Mired last week upon the highway.
Well and could not rise from weakness,

Perished there of strangulation.
Muddy are the fields around us,
Muddy is the earth beneath us,
How we wish our native county
Would but build rock roads, and save us

From the fate of this poor creature.

The Power of Song

By F. A. MITCHEL

There was a girl of one of those states which now compose the Balkans whose ambition was to emulate men in athletics. Expert in throwing the discus, she won contests against those who were champions in this game. She was the best chariot driver in the kingdom and had won many races. But her most remarkable feats were in running. In this no one was found to beat her.

So proud was she of her swiftness on her legs that she made a vow she would marry no man who could not beat her on the cinder path. Having many suitors, this only added to the rivalry among them. But since an ability to run fast does not argue that a man is otherwise attractive, those whose muscular development warranted their entering the list were not likely to win the girl even if they won the race. Several fleet runners came so near beating her that if she had chosen she might have thrown the race without appearing to do so.

One day a young man came to the village where this girl, Endoxia, lived and announced that he would enter the list against her, only he made the provision that should he win the race she must marry him. He sent a challenge, and Endoxia dispatched her brother to look the man over and report to her whether he would likely outrun her. The brother returned and reported that, while the challenger was shapely, he was not muscular, and his physique did not warrant the inference that he could beat an ordinary runner.

The slight risk of being beaten by one whom she would be pledged to marry and yet might dislike tempted Endoxia to consent to the terms. So an agreement was drawn up between her and the stranger, who called himself Boris, to race, and if he beat her she was to marry him. This agreement was signed by Endoxia without having seen her suitor.

The race was to take place on a track in the form of an ellipse, the length being half a mile and there being seven laps. A large concourse of people were gathered to see the race. The stranger stepped forth in a pair of short running pants such as are worn at the present day. One thing about him was noticeable—his manly beauty. It was evident that he was not built for fleetness. But what astonished everyone was that he held in his hand a harp. Endoxia was astirred in the same fashion, with the addition of a shiver falling only to the thighs.

When the two confronted each other it was noticed that the stranger's manly beauty, which all agreed rivaled the statue of Apollo, made a marked impression on Endoxia. When she saw the harp in his hand she was surprised, and when he did not lay it aside before taking his position for the race she wondered.

The signal was given, Endoxia started off so fast that she did not know that Boris was walking slowly. She heard behind her sounds from the strings of the harp, soothing rather than inspiring. When she had made three-quarters of the first lap there, directly opposite her at the other end of the minor axis of the elliptical course, was Boris, walking and striking his harp. Endoxia, who had nothing to fear from such a tortoise, stopped to listen. Boris was singing her praises, the love he felt for her, pleading that she would not turn a deaf ear to him. She listened till he had gone out of hearing, and then she proceeded to the other end of the minor axis and waited till he had come around to the point where she had been listening to his song.

It seemed that in the meanwhile it had grown sweater. He was walking very slowly, putting all his feeling into it. Again Endoxia went on till she reached the point at which he had been singing, while he proceeded till he took her place. Here both stood still, the man singing of the beauty and the virtues of the peerless Endoxia, she seeming to be spellbound. Then he went on singing, "Wait for me, fair one," repeating the words again and again till he came around to where she stood, and the two walked side by side.

In this way they proceeded, the girl rapt in the song, till they came within a few yards of the goal, when Boris, still singing, turned and walked backward, keeping his eyes fixed on Endoxia, till he passed over the goal. Then the spectators, who had appeared to be enthralled as well as the girl, drew a long breath and burst into cheer.

And so Endoxia was won, not by fleetness, but by the power of song. As soon as he had won the race Boris announced himself to be the son of a powerful noble of what is now Montenegro, and, without holding Endoxia to her contract, appeared himself as a suitor for her hand, which, after a period of maidenly reserve, she gave him. Many of the people who were not cognizant of what passed after the winning of the race believed that the stranger was Apollo, who had come down from heaven to win an earthly bride.

After the wedding Boris and his wife disappeared and when they reached his home were received with as much interest as had attended the race. For Boris had been by chance and, hearing of the girl who had beaten him in the foot race, had stopped on his way back to see her. He had come to win her by making her fall in love with him.

Mr. Barnackel

By EDITH V. ROSS

"Enoch Barnackel! What a name! Any one would know that he was a crusty old man of the farmer type, uneducated and with no manners. But what can I do?"

These words were spoken to herself by a girl who had some sixteen years before been left at a foundling's home and who had been given the name of Helen and had later chosen the additional name of Whitman. She had been retained at the home as an employee till she approached seventeen, then was informed that a farmer named Barnackel had written that he wanted a wife and asked whether one could be sent to him. Helen was informed of the opportunity.

After a long and tearful deliberation, feeling incompetent to go out into the world and make a living, she decided to go out to Mr. Barnackel. If he was very terrible she might commit suicide. The matron approved of her resolution, for she was comely, and the good woman feared that with her inexperience she might fall a victim to some designing person.

Mr. Barnackel was informed that there was a young woman ready to accept his proposition, and he sent money for her journey. The heartbroken girl nervously herself to her fate and one afternoon alighted at a railway station at the village near which his farm was located. A young farmer with a whip in his hand approached her and asked if she was the young woman who was to marry Mr. Barnackel.

"I am," was the reply. "That is, if he isn't an ogre."

The young man smiled. His smile was very winning. "I have a team here," he said. "I'll drive you to the farm."

When seated in the wagon and he had said "get up" to the horses Helen expected that he would say something to her. He did not. He seemed to be thinking.

"What kind of a looking man is Mr. Barnackel?" she asked.

Now, the young man was George Barnackel, nephew of the man who had written for a wife. The uncle was fifty years old, his face looked like a ball of strings, his hair was red, and he was just too unlovely for anything. At any rate, that is the way the daughter of one of the neighboring farmers put it. In fact, he was exactly what Helen had conceived him to be, judging from his name. He must also have been a fool or he would never have sent his good-looking nephew for a young girl he expected to make his wife. Upon Helen's inquiry George turned his face toward her, displaying a set of regular white teeth by smiling, and asked:

"Suppose I should tell you that he is a disagreeable old codger and always cross as a bear. What would you do?" "I would jump into the river—that is, if there is one near by."

There was a prolonged silence, at the end of which the young man said: "And what would you say if I told you that I am Mr. Barnackel?"

Helen's heart went up into her throat. She made no reply to the question, but she sidled nearer to her companion. Presently there came a subdued voice: "Are you Mr. Barnackel?"

"I am."

Her face was beat low. He leaned lower himself and looked up into it. He saw what he took to be a look of pleasure. Perhaps it was relief. The reins were in his right hand. She was sitting at his left. He put his left arm about her waist. She looked up at him, her eyes wet, a suspicion of a smile on her lips. He kissed her.

"How far is it to the farm?" was the next thing said.

"About three miles."

George drove over six miles, which seemed like three to Helen, then stopped at a farmhouse.

"Wait in the wagon," he said, "while I go in to tell my mother and sister you're here. They don't know you're coming."

Leaving the reins in her hands, he went into the house. He was gone a long while. Helen saw the face of an elderly woman surveying her from a window, then a younger one doing the same.

"Oh, dear," she said, "I hope they're not going to make him send me back!"

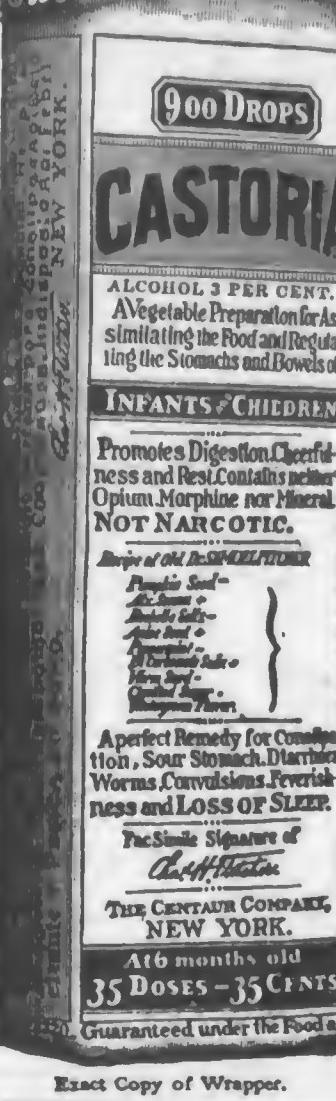

Presently a door opened and the two women came out, the elder in advance. She welcomed Helen, though she seemed constrained. Leading her into the house, the younger woman showed her to a chamber upstairs and, shutting the door behind them, took her in her arms, exclaiming:

"You poor child!"

"Why am I to be so pitied?" asked Helen, surprised.

"You're not. It's all right. We'll make you very happy. My brother is not the Mr. Barnackel you came out here to marry. That one is my uncle, a crusty old man who would not do for you at all. Being rheumatic, he asked George to drive you from the station to his farm. George wants you himself. Mother has given her consent, and you are to be married—that is, if you wish to marry George—at once."

Helen asked if haste were necessary. George replied to this that his bride belonged to his uncle, was expected by his uncle and unless the knot were tied there was no knowing what he would do in the matter. The chance of being turned over to the old curmudgeon to terrify Helen that she was only too glad to be married at once. The telling took place that evening.

Eastern Kentucky

Coal Fields Busy

According to Mine Inspector J. M. Reed, of the University of Kentucky, who has just returned from the Eastern Kentucky coal fields, the coal business is in a flourishing condition.

Mr. Reed says that the mines in Letcher and Perry counties are running to full capacity and those that have been closed are being opened. Two companies have a contract, to be divided between them, which will begin April 1, that will call for an output of 20,000 tons a day. To procure this will require about 15,000 workers.

For croup or sore throat, use Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil. Two sizes, 3¢ and 30¢. At all drug stores.

Constipation

When constipated or troubled with constipation take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Obtainable everywhere.

In time, of course, we will read of the high cost of breathing.

Do You Find Fault With Everybody?
An irritable, fault finding disposition is often due to a disordered stomach. A man with good digestion is nearly always good natured. A great many have been permanently benefited by Chamberlain's Tablets after years of suffering. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.

Some one somewhere once said that "all things come to him who waits." But that, of course, does not include editors and delinquent subscribers.

Richmond, Va. — "After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time — dizzy spells, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends." — Mrs. LENA WYNNE, 2812 E. O Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness.

For these abnormal conditions do not fail to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Don't be at all backward about dropping in and paying up that subscription. We'll take and shake as long as our old hand holds out.

Has Used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy For 20 Years

"Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in my household for the past twenty years. I began giving it to my children when they were small. As a quick relief for croup, whooping cough, and ordinary colds, it has no equal. Being free from opium and other harmful drugs, I never felt afraid to give it to the children. I have recommended it to a large number of friends and relatives, who have used it and speak highly of it," writes Mrs. Mary Minke, Shortsville, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.
